According to the allegations in the complaints, Mr. Hamlin was incarcerated at the time of the filing of sixteen of these lawsuits. When he filed the complaint in CV-15-032, he was living in homeless shelters.

In each lawsuit, Mr. Hamlin filed an application to proceed without payment of fees. In CV-15-165, Mr. Hamlin also requests that service fees be paid without first attempting service by mail because "MCC will not photo-copy or pay for defendant's copy to be sent if the envelope consists of more than one (1) ounce in weight and plaintiff's complaint exceeds the postage weight." MCC states this assertion is not accurate. Finally, Mr. Hamlin requests the court supply at no cost to him court forms available to the public for a fee only.

Discussion

Rule 91 provides the complaint and motion filing fees may be waived upon a finding by the court that the action or motion is not frivolous, has been brought in good faith, and the plaintiff is without sufficient funds to pay the fees. M.R. Civ. P. 91(b) & (d). The rule provides that service costs may be paid as an administrative expense upon a finding that the action is filed, or motion brought, in good faith and the plaintiff is without sufficient funds. Service costs will be paid only after plaintiff certifies he has attempted unsuccessfully to accomplish service by agreement or in a manner that does not require payment of costs, except postage. M.R. Civ. P. 91(c). The application to proceed without payment of fees court form also provides that the mediation and jury fees may be waived upon a finding the applicant is proceeding in good faith and is without sufficient funds to pay certain fees and costs. Neither the rule nor the form provides for waiver of payment for court forms, such as summonses.

The Maine Law Court has addressed the issue of denying a Rule 91 petition based on a frivolous complaint. See, e.g., Fleming v. Dep't of Corr., 2006 ME 23, ¶ 1, 892 A.2d 1161. The Law Court has also approved enjoining a party from filing frivolous and vexatious lawsuits. Spickler v. Key Bank of S. Me., 618 A.2d 204, 207 (Me. 1992).

The United States Supreme Court has determined the federal in forma pauperis statute "is designed to ensure that indigent litigants have meaningful access to the federal courts." Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 325 (1989). Federal courts are authorized "to dismiss a claim filed in forma pauperis if the allegation of poverty is untrue, or if satisfied that the action is frivolous or malicious" because "Congress recognized . . . that a litigant whose filing fees and court costs are assumed by the public, unlike a paying litigant, lacks an economic incentive to refrain from filing frivolous, malicious, or repetitive lawsuits." Id. (quotation marks omitted); see Hattie v. Andrews, 1998 Ohio App. LEXIS 2144, at *3 (May 14, 1998).

A Nebraska statute permits a judge to object to an application to proceed in forma pauperis "on the grounds that the applicant is asserting legal positions which are frivolous or malicious." Lenz v. Hicks, 824 N.W.2d 769, 771 (Neb. Ct. App. 2012). "The definition of a 'malicious' action is not well settled; however, the decisions which have addressed the issue show that it is appropriate to consider the number and kinds of cases instituted, and the extent to which the conduct of the litigant constitutes an abuse of the judicial process." Id.

Mr. Hamlin has asked the public to assume the cost of seventeen lawsuits. His history of litigation in Cumberland County, including filing seven lawsuits during the first 159 days of 2015, constitutes the type of repetitive lawsuits Congress anticipated in authorizing a dismissal of a claim filed in forma pauperis. This history of litigation constitutes an abuse of the judicial process and the court's limited resources.

Further, in this complaint, Mr. Hamlin alleges violation of equal protection and due process by private actors. See Holland v. Sebunya, 2000 ME 160, ¶ 11, 759 A.2d 205. He also seeks compensatory and punitive damages based on alleged discrimination but does not allege he filed a complaint with the Maine Human Rights Commission. See 5 M.R.S. § 4622(1) (2014); 5 M.R.S. § 4613 (2014). It appears likely that most, if not all, of the eleven defendants in this complaint would require representation by an attorney. See 4 M.R.S. § 807(3)(C) & (J) (2014).

The entry is

Michael Hamlin's application to proceed without payment of fees is DENIED. If the filing fee is not paid within twenty days of the date of this order, this action is dismissed without prejudice.
